Dear Wyoming GIS,

The ESRI SWUG conference is next week, October 21-23. It will be a great week of diverse presentations from attendees from all the southwestern states! Outstanding keynotes and ESRI workshops will round out the offerings. The economy hasn't hurt this conference, join your fellow-professionals! Learn! Have fun!

Please see the finalized Conference Schedule for details and REGISTER!

Conference Special Events

We know you don't go to conferences for the food and socials, but you'll enjoy what SWUG has to offer this year. Arrive on Tuesday night to take in local art and music in an open atmosphere at the Sangre de Cristo Arts Center. Network in style while roaming several floors of galleries to the upbeat folk-rock tunes of Denver's own "MOD Dogs".

There is plenty to do in Pueblo. The forecast is for mild weather in the 60s. Go to the Italian market, take a hike, tour a train. Things to Do in Pueblo When You're Dead! (Dead-tired of conference activities, that is.)

Pueblo is becoming a hub for sustainable technology. To honor that, all coffee served will be from the uber-cool Solar Roast Coffee. The coffee shop is a couple blocks up from the conference center. Stop in and talk to the eclectic owners and taste the difference!

Don't Know Much About History??

Pueblo has a diverse history from Utes to Hungarians. Join us on Wednesday night for the vendor social which will feature cuisine from many segments of Pueblo's diverse population. Where else will you get salsa and perogis in the same meal?

We'll be combining history and fun with the social on the last night as we dine in the historic fort where it all began. The adobe hornos will be lit and docents will be on hand to answer questions. Read up beforehand at El Pueblo Museum. Bring your coats, this is mostly an outdoor event! There's more fun planned too -- see Special Events for details. If you have questions, our contact info is at the bottom of this email. We really hope to see you next week!
